							ING asks for a mandate to issue shares up to 50% of the issued capital. This is considerably higher than the local guidelines (20%, of which 10% without pre-emptive rights). Our policy is to only approve a higher mandate if a company explains why the higher mandate is necessary. That is not the case in this case, except that ING may need financial flexibility. In recent years, ING has also requested this mandate but has not made use of it.
